Overview of Market

Listed Stock Trades & Trend of Land Trades
Case Chart from 2014 to the first half of 2020

Land trading amount of six urban cities in Taiwan by all listed construction companies across six cities

In September 2020, the HPI of AIFE increased slightly by 0.02% compared to the previous month, an increase of 2.28% over the same period last year, and the housing price trend is gradually rising; for the residential market, the volume of trade decreased by 4.63% from the previous month and 10.65% from the same period last year. However, more attention shall be paid to follow-up performance for the impact of the post-epidemic era on the housing market.

Observing the price-quantity performance of the counties and cities Taiwan's in September 2020, Except for that the housing prices of Yilan County, Miaoli County, and Nantou County fell compared to the same period last year, the rest of the metropolitan areas and counties and cities all rose, and the volume of trade varied. In respect of the housing price performance, among the six metropolitan areas, compared with the same period last year, Tainan City became the most impressive city where the house prices increased by nearly 5%, followed by Taichung City.

Among the northern counties and cities, the price in Keelung City and Hsinchu City both increased by more than 2%, while Yilan County fell by 2.43%; among the central counties and cities, the value increases in Changhua County was more than 5%, while Miaoli and Nantou counties showed negative growth and were in a consolidation pattern; for the southern counties and cities, Chiayi County has the most impressive performance with the housing price increase of more than 8%, ranking first in Taiwan, and the value increases of Pingtung County was nearly 6%, ranking second in Taiwan; in the eastern Taiwan, the housing prices in Hualien County have been fairly stable in the past three years, which increased by 1.70% in this month compared with the same period last year. The following development shall be worth paying attention to. On the whole, except for Yilan County, Miaoli County and Nantou County, all the other counties and cities showed price increases. The value increase in Southern Taiwan was larger while that in Northern Taiwan was relatively stable.

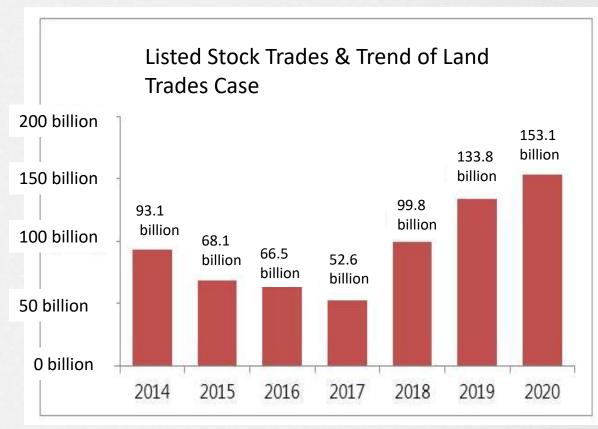

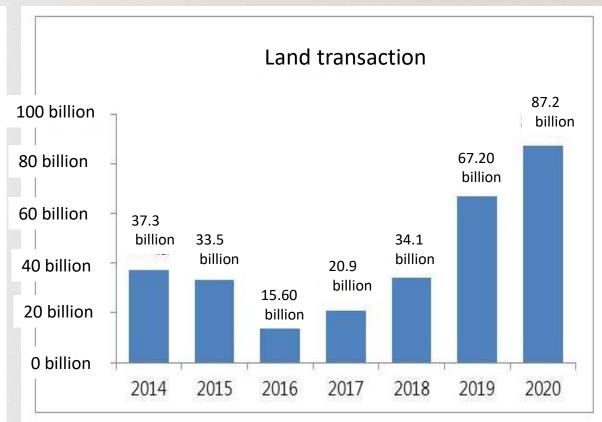

All-Taiwan Review of House + in September, 2020

Affected by the COVID-19, although the national market price increased compared with the same period last year, the recent price trend has been ebbing; the buying needs in the market tend to be stable, but we still need to be aware of the subsequent development of the housing market. At present, the price and quantity of the house market is both fairly stable.
